Lifecore Biomedical COVID-19 Update

Considering the fast evolving situation linked to the coronavirus outbreak, we want to provide you with an update on the status of the Lifecore operations and what we are doing to reduce the impact on the supply of your products and development services.

Lifecore Biomedical Essential Services Status: The state of Minnesota issued a “Stay at Home” order that goes into effect March 27th at 11:59PM through April 10th. The United States Federal Government and the state of MN have both determined that the pharmaceutical and medical device industries are essential to maintaining a supply of critical products in the United States. As such, Lifecore continues to maintain a full operating schedule with the modifications identified below.

Changes at Lifecore:

The following measures balance our responsibility to our employees, our community and our customers. We have implemented the following:

- Remote work options for people who have the ability to work from home
- Minimizing large groups in enclosed spaces, practicing social distancing
- Encouraging use of phone or audio-video teleconferencing tools in place of face to face meetings
- Performing routine environmental disinfection
- Restricting business travel
- Restricting visitors. We are restricting on-site visits to only individuals who are critical to maintaining our operations

Production and Development Services

Despite the implementation of precautionary measures, our facilities remain in operation. Although we do not anticipate interruptions to our operations, we have implemented a detailed business continuity plan to minimize any impact to our production schedule and our development services. Our operations and supply chain teams are fully engaged with our vendors and if we anticipate any significant impact on our production or deliveries we will notify you immediately.

We believe we have implemented the best practices given the current facts surrounding the coronavirus outbreak. While our day to day work environment has changed, it has not impacted our mission and commitment to serve our customers.

Please feel free to contact me with any additional questions that you may have as we want to ensure that you and your company have the necessary information to effectively manage your business.
